7 Cardsharing

What does that mean ? Clearly, it is the way to have two dreambox using only one official card. What is the purpose ? We all know the frustration to have our favourite provider with the official set top box in the lounge, and being not able to move to your bed to finish the movie because you can't watch your crypted provider in your bedroom...

This slightly improved with low cost 2.4Ghz video repeater that enable to duplicate video, and have exactly the same picture on both TV.

Well, as we all always want more, now there is still some features that we would be pleased to have. Record a channel and watch another one, watch football with friends downstairs while your wife watch Ally McBeal in the bedroom for well known examples.

This bring an important thing here. Do I have the right to watch two different channel with only one card ? Clearly, is that thing legal ?

This is not an easy question. If you get a set top box with a dual tuner, no doubt is legal to use an official card inside. But with two separated set top box, is that legal ? I think it is, but I do not take responsibility of this, more as it can be different from one country to another one, and/or from one provider to another one.

The only solution is to ask your provider.

What is clearly strictly illegal is to share your subscription with someone else. You should be aware that is pure hacking of a PayTV system and court sentence can be really heavy.

Last point is hacking is just killing the satellite providers, and you will see new emerging systems like TV on ADSL going up, as there is no hacking on it. But for sat addicts we are, that means less and less offer on our favorite multi national TV reception systems, so think twice before doing bad choices.

I insist on the 100% legal content of this guide, and ask you to read this fully and understand that you agree to officially ask your provider what you can do and what you cannot do with your official card before doing it, and that you fully agree this guide, author, translators or web hoster cannot be responsible of what stupid thing you may do, exactly like a car manufacturer cannot be responsible of crazy guys driving drunk and far over the speed limit.
